A 64-year-old man was referred to our hospital for a neurological examination. He had no symptoms and a normal physical examination. He did not have a history of systemic disease. His complaints were only an intractable headache. He was therefore admitted to our hospital for suspected subarachnoid hemorrhage due to hypertensive hemorrhagic infarction of the brain. Initial laboratory studies revealed elevated ESR (36 mm/h) and CRP (5.0 mg/dl). The results of cerebrospinal fluid (CSF) tests were normal. Head CT revealed low-density areas in the bilateral parietal regions. On day 1 of hospitalization, the protein level of the CSF was elevated (933 mg/dl). A lumbar puncture and spinal fluid test performed on day 2 of hospitalization revealed increased protein (1,315 mg/dl) and decreased glucose (21 mg/dl). The patient's condition improved after administration of a 5-day course of corticosteroids, and his protein level decreased to 273 mg/dl. He was then discharged from the hospital. Abnormal findings in CSF
